Nautilus donates $12,000 to support community centers in 2013

Santa paid an early visit to Marshall and Firstenburg Community Centers in the form of a $12,000 gift from Nautilus, Inc., to provide ongoing support and maintenance of the Nautilus Fitness Centers, located within each of the two Community Centers. This is much-welcome news for the Vancouver-Clark Parks and Recreation Department, which has suffered deep budget cuts over the last two years.

"Our company's mission is to develop and market innovative products that help people achieve their health and fitness goals, and as part of that, be supportive of our local community," says Bruce Cazenave, CEO of Nautilus, Inc. "To this end, we are proud to continue our relationship with the Firstenburg and Marshall Community centers, which provide fitness equipment so people have the opportunity to live a healthy lifestyle."

"We are very grateful to the community-minded leaders at Nautilus for their interest in the health and wellness of our citizens," says Laura Hudson, Vancouver-Clark Parks and Recreation interim director. "Their 2013 gift to the Parks Foundation will assist us in maintaining relevant and current fitness programs and facilities at our community centers, and is another example of their long-standing partnership with Vancouver-Clark Parks & Recreation."

Nautilus, Inc. CEO Bruce Cazenave says, "Our global headquarters is located in Vancouver, and we are proud to be a part of this community. Our partnership with the Parks Foundation began in 2006, and while we now focus on home fitness products we remain committed to our community and the centers that so proudly display our company name."
